SECRETARY HAY RESPONDS TO TOAST

Tells of the Aims and Successes of Recent Diplomacy.

OTHER RESPONSES TO TOASTS

The one hundred and thirty-third annual banquet of the chamber of commerce was held at Delmonico's in New York last evening. The Associated Press report of the event says: Covers for 450 were laid in the main banquet room, which was simply. though effectively decorated, chiefly with American flags.

The speech-making was opened by President Jesup in a very few words. He then proposed a toast to the memory of William McKinley. It was drunk with all standing and in silence. President Roosevelt's health was then toasted, while the orchestra played, and at the next toast that of King Edward of England, the British national anthem was played. In introducing Secretary Hay, President Jesup proposed a toast to "Our Diplomacy." The Secretary was warmly welcomed by the guests, and his speech at various points met with great enthusiasm, especially when he mentioned the name of President McKinley. The speech obtained rapt attention, and the applause was deafening when, in his peroration, he said:

"No wantonness of strength will ever in duce us to drive a hard bargain with another nation because it is weak, nor will any fear of ignoble criticism tempt us to insult or defy a great power because it is strong or even because it is friendly."

Secretary Hay's Speech. After an eloquent tribute to the memory of President McKinley, Mr. Hay said: "I dare to come to you because you have asked me, and he would have wished it, for he held that our personal feelings should never be considered when they con-sons you draw will be a tribute to his mem-"I am asked to say something about our diplomacy. You want from me nothing but the truth; and yet, if I confine myself to the truth, I cannot help fearing I shall do my profession a wrong in the minds of those who have been in the habit of considering diplomacy an occult science, as mysterious as alchemy, and as dangerous to the morals as municipal politics. It must be admitted that this conception of the diplomatic function is not without a

"There was a time when diplomacy was a science of intrigue and falsehood, of traps and mines and counter mines. It be another instance of that credulity with which I have often been charged by European critics when I say that I really believe the world has moved onward in diplomacy as in many other matters. "In my experience of diplomatic life, which now covers more years than I like to look back upon, and in the far greater rec-ord of American diplomacy, which I have read and studied, I can say without hesitation that we have generally told squarely FOREIGN POSTAL SERVICE.

NOTED MEN BANQUET what we wanted, announced early in negotiation what we were willing to give and allowed the other side to accept or reject our terms. During the time in which I Annual Dinner of the New York have been prominently concerned in our foreign relations I can also say that we have been met by the representatives of other powers in the same spirit of frank-

> "As to the measure of success which our recent diplomacy has met with, it is difficult, if not impossible, for me to speak, There are two important lines of human endeavor in which men are forbidden even to allude to their success-affairs of the heart and diplomatic affairs.
> "But if we are not permitted to boast of what we have done we can at least say a word about what we have tried to do and the principles which have guided our action. The briefest expression of our rule of conduct is, perhaps, the Monroe doc-trine and the golden rule. With this simple chart we can hardly go far wrong.

"I think I may say that our sister republics to the south of us are perfectly convinced of the sincerity of our attitude. They know we desire the prosperity of each of them and peace and harmony among them. We no more want their ter-ritory than we covet the mountains of the moon. We are grieved and distressed when there are differences among them; when there are differences among them; but even then we should never think of trying to compose any of those differences unless by the request of both parties to it. Not even our earnest desire for peace among them will lead us to any action which might offend their national dignity or their just sense of independence. We owe them all the consideration which we claim for ourselves.

Purposes for the Future. "As to what we have tried to do-what we are still trying to do-in the general field of diplomacy, there is no reason for doubt on the one hand or reticence on the other. President McKinley in his messages during the last four years has made the subject perfectly clear. We have striven, on the lines laid down by Washington, to cultivate friendly relations with all powers, but not to take part in the formation of groups or combinations among them. A position of complete independence is not incompatible with relations in-volving not friendship alone, but concurrent action as well in important emer-gencies. We have kept always in view the fact that we are pre-eminently a peace-loving people; that our normal activities are in the direction of trade and com-merce; that the vast development of our industries imperatively demands that we shall not only retain and confirm our hold on our present markets, but seek con-stantly, by all honorable means, to extend our commercial interests in every practica-ble direction. It is for this reason we have negotiated the treaties of reciprocity, which now await action of the Senate; all flicted with a public duty. And if I fall immeasurably below the standard to which of them conceived in the traditional American spirit of protection to our own industries, and yet mutually advantageous to ourselves and our neighbors. In the same spirit we have sought successfully to induce all the great powers to unite in a recognition of the general principle of equality of commercial access and opportunity in the markets of the orient believe that 'A fair field and no favor' is all we require, and with less than that we cannot be satisfied. If we accept the assurances we have received as honest and genuine, as I certainly do, that equality will not be denied us, and the result may safely be left to American genius and energy.

"We consider our interests in the Pacific ocean as great now as those of any other power, and destined to indefinite development. We have opened our doors to the people of Hawaii; we have accepted the responsibility of the Philippines which Providence imposed upon us; we have put an end to the embarassing condeminium in an end to the embarassing condominium in which we were involved in Samoa, and while abandoning none of our commercial rights in the entire group, we have established our flag and our authority in Tutulia, which gives us the finest harbor in the South seas. Next in order will come a Pacific cable, and an isthmian canal for the use of all well-disposed peoples, but under exclusive American ownership and American cantrol-of both of which great enterprises President McKinley and President Roosevelt have been the energetic and con-

Gov. Odell spoke to the toast, "State of New York," and Mayor-elect Low replied to the toast, "The City of New York." Joseph H. Choate, ambassador to the court of St. James, was next introduced. After the applause had subsided, he spoke with his usual eloquence, dwelling mostly on the sympathy that had been shown by the British people at the time of President McKinley's death, and said that not only had sympathy been manifested almost every hour for days after the event by royalty, but that all classes were quite as sorrowful. In view of these facts, Mr.

Choate thought this government justified in thinking that England's grief was an expression of natural sympathy.

Mr. Choate was followed by Senator Mc-Laurin of South Carolina, who spoke to the toast of "The Monroe Doctrine of the Twentieth Century." The senator's address was very well received and he was fre-

"The governor has received no telegrams or other advices from the governors of neighboring states as to what action they will take, but it is expected that the fight will be taken up in all the northwestern states, several of which have laws similar to Minnesota prohibiting the consolidation of parallel and competing lines of railroads. The laws of North Dakota, Montana and Washington are said to be identical with Washington are said to be identical with those of Minnesota."

A dispatch from Tacoma, Wash., says:
In response to requests and the advice of friends Gov. Rogers is considering the advisability of calling an extra session of the legislature to take action to prevent the consolidation of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railways.

Gov. Rogers is very conservative in matters of this kind, and declares he will not take action until the subject shall be considered thoroughly from every standpoint. Though elected as a populist he has always taken the stand that capital should be thoroughly protected. On the other hand, he believes, like Gov. Van Sant of Minnesota that the interests of the northwest will be injured by the union of the two foremost The state constitution provides that "mo-nopolies and trusts shall never be allowed in this state," and directs the legislature
